Foreward:

Suffield was established as a new and separate town by Act of the General Court of Mass in Oct 1670. Previously it had been considered as lying within the somewhat indefinite bounds of Springfield, and it was upon the recommendation of the Selectmen of that town that a petition was brought to the Mass authorities which resulted in the incorporation of Suffield as a Mass Town. A Church was soon organized, as a minister is said to have been settled within two years. No early records of the church are known to exist; the earliest being here printed.

There was a long and sometimes bitter dispute between Mass and Conn over the boundary line between the two colonies. This was ended at least for the time being, through acceptance of the General Court of Conn in May 1749 of a petition made to it by Suffield and other towns along the boundary to be taken under the jurisdiction of Conn. Since May 1749, Suffield has been a part of Conn, although Mass continued to lay claim to it for a score more years.
